Education
Fagan

Research Bulletin

OF THE

National Education Association

INDEX TO VOLUME XIX, 1941

Acceleration: extra subjects carried, 171; of exceptionally bright students, 161, 164, 171–72; rapid advancement in regular subjects, 171–72, 194; skipping in the higher grades, 172. See also Superior students in high school.
Achievement: of superior students, 161.
Acknowledgment: of special assistance in preparation of Research Bulletin on "High-School Methods with Superior Students," 197.
Adams, Fay: referred to, 164, 166, 167, 168, 185, 188, 190, 191, 193, 196; quoted, 179.
Alpern, Hymen: referred to, 176.
American Association of School Administrators, Committee on Resolutions: quoted, 152.
American Council on Education, Committee on Materials of Instruction: reports cited, 191.
Anderson, H. Dewey: referred to, 231.
Association of First Assistants in the High Schools of New York City: conclusions and recommendations concerning provisions for superior students, 169.

Bard, Harry: referred to, 188.
Barlage, Anne: referred to, 193.
Beebe, William: referred to, 186.
Benson, R. T.: referred to, 185.
Bentley, John E.: referred to, 171, 180, 196.
Billett, Roy O.: referred to, 165, 174, 183, 196.
Blair, Glenn M.: referred to, 196.
Blose, David T.: referred to, 110.
Bode, Carl J.: referred to, 185.
Bolzau, Emma L.: referred to, 184, 189.
Broening, Angela M.: referred to, 185.
Brown, H. E.: referred to, 190.
Brown, Walker: referred to, 164, 166, 167, 168, 185, 188, 190, 191, 193, 196; quoted, 179.
Bruner, Herbert B.: referred to, 196.
Burks, Barbara S.: quoted, 158, 165; referred to, 196.
Buros, Oscar K.: referred to, 159, 162, 196.
Byrd, Richard E.: referred to, 186.

Calvert, E. W.: referred to, 193.
Carroll, Herbert A.: referred to, 158, 160, 162, 164, 166, 167, 168, 196.
Census: cities included in salary survey grouped according to 1940 Census, 69; "labor force" defined by 1940, 220; location, in nine U. S. Census divisions, of states according to expenditures for schools, 105; 1930 marked a change in population growth, 204, 205; reports on level of schooling, 225. See also Population.
Census, Schools and the 1940: See Population.
Chambers, H. L.: referred to, 185.
Chambers, M. M.: referred to, 62.
Chase, Stuart: referred to, 231.
Churchill, Winston: referred to, 186.
Clark, William: expedition referred to, 189.
Cohen, Helen L.: referred to, 166, 169, 185, 188, 190, 191, 193, 196.
Coleman, Basil T.: referred to, 176.
Conklin, Agnes M.: referred to, 196.
Constitution: no prohibition to prevent federal taxation of public employees or employers, 60.
Cooke, Dennis H.: referred to, 62.
Correspondence study: supervised, for superior students, 180.
Coryell, Nancy G.: referred to, 166, 169, 185, 188, 190, 191, 193, 196.
Coughlin, Mildred M.: referred to, 171.
Council of State Governments: referred to, 132.
Curriculum: an Armistice Day program, 190; and instruction–current school provisions for superior students, 182–93; enrichment in specific curriculum areas, 185–93; integration of subjects, 189–90; social studies classes will find Research Bulletin helpful in outlining citizenship problems, 206. See also Superior students in high school.
Curtis, Carl T.: quoted, 219.

Davidson, Percy E.: referred to, 231.
Davis, H. H.: referred to, 95.
Davis, Hazel: referred to, 95.
Detchen, Lily: referred to, 172.
Douglas, Paul H.: referred to, 62.
Dransfield, J. Edgar: referred to, 196.
Dublin, Louis I.: referred to, 231.

Economic status of teachers: selected references on, 94. See also Salaries of city school employees, 1940–41.
Education: adult education, 229; and employment, 230; coordination of educational efforts, 229–30; educational underprivilege still affects large segments of our population, 227; every fifth American is in school or college, 226; extension of educational opportunities, 229; going to school as a major occupation, 225–27; guidance and vocational education, 230; improvement of instructional program, 225; improvement of present, 228–29; provisions for migrants and minority groups, 229; public relations in improvement of, 228–29; rising educational status of nation, 225; shifts in distribution of school enrolments, 227; the professional personnel in the improvement of, 228; the task ahead, 228–30; work experience, 229–30.
Edwards, Alba M.: referred to, 231.
Elsbree, Willard S.: referred to, 95.
Emenheiser, B. F.: referred to, 188.
Employment: See Occupations.
Enrichment: ability grouping and enrichment classes, 174–77; activities in heterogeneous social studies classes, 188–89; activities in special classes in mathematics, 192–93; American literature in a high ability group, 187; an Armistice Day program, 190; continuing-teacher plan in mathematics, 193; elective subjects, 194; extra projects in an honor class in science, 190–91; geography units in enrichment classes, 189; group projects in special English classes, 186; in English, 185–88; in mathematics, 191–93; in science, 190–91; in social studies, 188–90; in specific curriculum areas, 185–88; individual activities in a regular science class, 190; individualized work in special English classes, 186–87; integration of subjects, 189–90; methods of curriculum enrichment, 166–67; nature of, 194–95; need for, 194; of other subjects, references on, 193; of school program for superior students, 161, 163, 164; procedures in heterogeneous English classes, 185–86; provision for special abilities, 194; short-story unit in a college preparatory class, 187–88; special class in world literature, 188; special enrichment or honors classes, 175–76; student assistantships in mathematics, 193; supplementary materials in mathematics, 191–92; unusual policy in regard to "extra" subjects, 180; varied assignments and teaching methods in mathematics, 192. See also Superior students in high school.
Enrolment: See Education.
Epstein, Abraham: referred to, 62.
Ewing, Mabel A.: referred to, 193.
Extracurriculum activities: clubs and other activities, 177; danger of participating in too many, 169; homeroom organization and operation of, 177; in the education of superior students, 167–68, 169, 177, 195. See also Superior students in high school.

Federal aid: for adult education, 229; for education, 110–12, 143, 144, 230; for highways, 115, 116; for migrants and minority groups, 229; for relief, 123–24; for rural schools, 229. See also Finance; School costs and state expenditures, 1930–1939; Taxation.
Federal Emergency Relief Administration: payments mentioned, 112, 132.
Finance: coordination of educational efforts in, 230; financial structure of state joint contributory teacher retirement systems, 8–33; fiscal status of teacher retirement systems, 34–45; growing competition between governmental services for available revenues, 230; regional distribution of children (5–19) and national income, 214. See also Federal aid; School costs and state expenditures, 1930–1939; Taxation.

Flanagan, Sherman E.: referred to, 62.
Flanders, J. K.: referred to, 95.
Fleagle, B. E.: referred to, 185.
Flory, Charles D.: referred to, 159.
Frank, Harry F.: referred to, 171.
Freeman, Frank N.: referred to, 159.
Freeman, Frank S.: referred to, 162.

Givens, Willard E.: forewords by, 4, 68, 100, 156, 204.
Goddard, Henry H.: referred to, 158, 196.
Goldthorpe, J. Harold: referred to, 95.
Gossard, Arthur P.: referred to, 157, 166, 180, 196.
Guidance: and vocational education, coordination of educational efforts in, 230; for superior students, 180–83.

Hacker, Louis M.: referred to, 231.
Hawthorne, Nathaniel: referred to, 187, 188.
Health: amounts spent by state governments for, 136–42; danger of mental or nervous strain could be reduced, 169; physical traits of mentally superior children, 160.
Heck, Arch O.: referred to, 166, 167, 168, 196.
Herr, W. A.: referred to, 172.
Highways: expenditures for, 113–17, 120–21, 136–42.
Hollingworth, Leta S.: referred to, 158, 160, 162, 164, 166, 167, 168, 196.
Homogeneous grouping: ability grouping and enrichment classes, 174–77; American literature in a high ability group, 187; bases for, 194; comprehensive schemes of ability grouping, 174–75; honor schools, 176–77; limited plans of ability grouping, 175. See also Superior students in high school.
Hook, Lucyle: referred to, 187.
Horowitz, A. E.: referred to, 188.
Hoskins, H. Stanhope: quoted, 192.
Hufnagle, F. M.: referred to, 185.
Hull, Cordell: reciprocal trade agreements referred to, 190.

Immigration: from 1820 to 1940, 210. See also Population.
Individual differences: all aspects of gifted students' education should be adapted to, 169; differentiated assignments in a special class in science, 191; differentiated assignments in heterogeneous classes, 182; differentiated curriculums and course offerings, 172–73; elective subjects, 172; improved marking system, 180; in learning abilities, trends in meeting, 157; individual and small-group projects, 183–84; individual activities in a regular science class, 190; individualized work in special English classes, 186–87; other administrative provisions, 180–81; parallel courses in certain subjects, 173; parallel curriculums, 173; supervised correspondence study, 180; supplementary materials in mathematics, 191–92; varied assignments and teaching methods in mathematics, 192; ways in which classroom instruction or guidance for superior students differs from that provided for average students, 183. See also Superior students in high school.
Instruction, Classroom: continuing-teacher plan in mathematics, 193; current school provisions for superior students, 182–93; differentiated assignments in heterogeneous classes, 183; for superior students, general practice in individual schools, 182–85; for superior students, summary of questionnaire replies, 182; general characteristics of classroom instruction for superior students, 182–85; improvement of instructional program, 228; individual and small group projects, 183–84; procedures in special classes, 184–85; varied assignments and teaching methods in mathematics, 192; ways in which it differs for superior students from that provided for average students, 183. See also Curriculum; Superior students in high school.

James, H. R.: referred to, 193.
Jewett, I. A.: referred to, 185.

Kingsley, J. D.: referred to, 62.
Kiser, Louise K.: quoted, 205, 231.

Lamson, Edna E.: referred to, 196.
Lane, Florence R.: referred to, 171.
Latimer, Murray Webb: referred to, 62.
Lefkowitz, Abraham: referred to, 176.
Lewis, Meriwether: expedition referred to, 189.
Library of Congress: referred to, 132.
Literacy. See Education.
Lorimer, Frank: quoted, 205, 231.
Luxuries: expenditures for, 126–28.

Mallory, V. S.: referred to, 191.
Manwiller, Charles E.: referred to, 174.
Marshall, Chief Justice: quoted, 60.
Martens, Elise H.: referred to, 196.
Merrill, Maud A.: referred to, 158.
Migration. See Population.
Migratory teachers: and federal social security, 59.
Miles, Dudley H.: referred to, 166, 176, 189.
Mills, Henry C.: referred to, 172.
Minimum-salary laws for teachers: selected references on, 95.
Modley, Rudolf: referred to, 231.
Mosher, W. E.: referred to, 62.
Moskowitz, David H.: referred to, 191.
Murchison, Carl: referred to, 158, 165.

National Association of Secondary-School Principals: referred to, 180.
National Committee on Coordination in Secondary Education: conference at Cleveland, Ohio, February 1939, 156.
National Council of Teachers of English: committee report referred to, 185.
National Council on Teacher Retirement: points of view, 6–7.
National Defense Advisory Commission: estimates on volume of defense migration, 219.
National Economic and Social Planning Association: committee report cited, 231.
National Education Association: distribution of information on teacher retirement and proposed extension of social security legislation, 4; resolution quoted, 5.
National Education Association, Committee on the Economic Status of the Rural Teacher: referred to, 94.
National Education Association, Committee on the Economic Status of the Teacher: referred to, 94.
National Education Association, Committee on Equal Opportunity: referred to, 94.
National Education Association, Committee on Retirement Allowances: report cited, 7.
National Education Association, Committee on Salaries: referred to, 94; report quoted, 91, 92.
National Education Association, Department of Elementary School Principals: salary schedule proposed by Committee on Standards in 1928, 78; yearbook cited, 158, 162.
National Education Association, Research Bulletin: quoted, 68; referred to, 6, 94, 204, 205, 231.
National Education Association, Research Division: biennial salary surveys since 1922–23, 69; loans cuts illustrating teacher retirement systems, 7; materials on teachers' salaries available for loan, 95; points of view on teacher retirement, 6–7; referred to, 95; Special Salary Tabulations referred to, 68, 79, 88, 94–95; same described, 89–90.
National Education Association, Research Division and American Association of School Administrators: Educational Research Service Circulars referred to, 94, 95.
National Education Association and American Association of School Administrators, Educational Policies Commission: referred to, 205, 227, 231.
National Industrial Conference Board: referred to, 113, 127, 147, 149, 150, 223, 231.
National Resources Committee: has issued publications on population, 205; quoted, 206.
National Society for the Study of Education: yearbook cited, 160, 196.
Negro teachers: salaries reported, 70.
Negroes: distribution of nonwhites in the population, 212–13.
Newland, T. Ernest: referred to, 157, 196.
Norment, A. B.: referred to, 190.
Norton, John K.: quoted, 96.

Oakes, M. E.: referred to, 190.
Occupations: and employment, 220–24; composition of the labor force, 220–21; coordination of educational efforts in employment, 230; employment status of men and of women, 1940, 220–21; industrial grouping, 221–23; "labor force" as defined by 1940 Census, 220; types of work, 223; unemployment, 221; workers grouped by industrial division, 1900 and 1939, 222; workers grouped by type of work, 1930, 224. See also Population.
Odum, H. W.: referred to, 106, 113.
Osburn, Worth J.: referred to, 167, 168, 196.
Outlook: for population of the United States, 204; for state school expenditures, 100, 129–30; for tax load, 100; for teacher retirement and social security, 4, 61; for teachers' salaries, 68; what population trends mean for education, 228–30.

Parker, Mary: referred to, 188.
Peterson, E. T.: referred to, 95.
Poe, Edgar Allan: referred to, 187, 188.
Population: age distribution of, 211–12; aliens and nonwhites, 212; and education, 225–27; approximate annual number of urban and rural interstate migrants, 218; birth-rates, 209; Bureau of the Census an important source of information, 206; children (5–19) and national income, 214; city-to-city migration, 217–18; death-rates, 209; educational provisions for migrants and minority groups, 229; estimated net gains and losses from interregional migration during 1930–40; 215; farm-to-farm migration, 217; fertility, 208–209; general characteristics of, 211–14; growth of, 207–10; immigration from 1820 to 1940, 210; interregional migration, 215–16; mobility of, 215–19; natural increase or decrease, 209; net cityward migration from farms, 1920–30 and 1930–40, 217; net reproduction rate, 209; occupations and employment, 220–24; points overlooked by tax-fighting groups, 205; racial distribution of, 212–13; regional distribution of, 213; rural-urban distribution of, 214; rural-urban migration, 216–17; scope and procedure of report, 206; seasonal migrants, 218–19; selected references on, 231; Social Security Board records show data on migration, 217–19; the task ahead, 228–30; total population change, 207–10; trends, 204, 207; what has been done since the 1930 Census, 205. See also Occupations.

President's Research Committee on Social Trends: referred to, 231.

Principals: acknowledgment of Research Division to, 197; opinions concerning the education of superior students, 163–64; recommendations deserving careful consideration by, 169; report on current school provisions for superior students, 170–81.

Pritchitt, Henry S.: referred to, 62.

Public relations: concerning nature and purpose of high ability groups, 166, 195; concerning teachers' salaries, 68; cooperative action for old-age protection, 61; destructive forces at work, 205; in the improvement of present education, 228–29; promotion of public understanding of expenditures, 100; with regard to population trends, 204.

Public Works Administration: payments mentioned, 112, 132.

Questionnaire: on education of superior students, 157; on salaries of city school employees, 93; on life adjustments and attitudes of former gifted students of Cleveland public schools, 165; summary of questionnaire replies on classroom instruction for superior students, 182.

References: list of state documents used as sources of information on school costs and state expenditures, 1930–1939, 134–35; on economic status of teaching profession, 94; on enrichment in specific curriculum areas, 185, 187, 188, 189, 190, 191, 192, 193; on high-school methods with superior students, 196; on honor schools, 176; on industrial retirement, 62; on public service retirement, 62; on social security, 62; on specific abilities and their relation to general intelligence, 162; on teacher retirement, 62; on teachers' salaries and salary scheduling, 94–95.

Relief: expenditures for, 118–25, 136–42.

Retirement: administrative costs, 34; allowances, 47–48, 51–54; contribution from public sources, 8–10; current proposals for old-age pensions referred to, 61; definition of a state teacher retirement system, 7; disability retirement allowances, 53–54; distribution of administrative expenses for systems, 36–37; distribution of disbursements of 52 systems, 41–42; distribution of state and local systems, 5; effects of tenure laws on membership, 46–47, 50–51; financial structure of state joint-contributory systems, 8–33; fiscal status of systems, 34–45; fiscal summary of 52 systems, 43–44; growth in ledger assets over ten-year period, 44; growth in membership over ten-year period, 46; local teacher retirement systems listed, 6; members' contributions, 8; membership statistics, 46–54; miscellaneous fiscal data, 45; noncertificated school employees included in plans, 7; number and salaries of administrative staff of systems, 38–39; pictorial analysis of financial arrangement of twenty-three state systems, 10–33; points of view on, 6; possible extension of federal social security to teachers, 55–61; proportion of teachers without old-age protection and those under various types of plans, 5; selected references on, 62; sources of income of 52 systems, 40–41; statewide teacher pension plans listed, 6; statewide teacher retirement systems listed, 6; superannuation or service retirement allowances, 51–52; total membership, 46, 48–49; what a sound teacher retirement system does, 64. See also Social security.

Richter, Alexander: referred to, 193.

Rightor, C. E.: referred to, 133.

Riter, Harold E.: referred to, 191.

Rohan, Ben J.: referred to, 167, 168, 196.

Rølvag, Ole E.: referred to, 187.

Roosevelt, Franklin D.: referred to, 186.

Rural areas: approximate annual number of urban and rural interstate migrants, 218; extension of educational opportunities in rural schools, 229; farm-to-farm migration, 217; have relatively heavier educational burden, 213; net cityward migration from farms, 1920–30 and 1930–40, 217; regional distribution of population, 213; rural-urban distribution of population, 214; rural-urban migration, 216–17; seasonal migrants, 218–19.

Sager, Albert H.: referred to, 176.

Salaries: average salary of teachers in 1937–38, 56; of administrative staff of teachers retirement systems, 38–39; of rural teachers, 69. See also Salaries of city school employees, 1940–41; Salary schedules.

Salaries of city school employees, 1940–41: comparisons between positions and levels, 86–87; distribution of salaries paid certain administrative and supervisory officers, 80–81; distribution of salaries paid other school employees, 85; distribution of salaries paid principals, 78–79; distribution of salaries paid secretarial and clerical employees, 84; distribution of salaries paid teachers, 76–77; forms and definitions used in collecting data, 93; intercity comparisons, 88–90; median and arithmetic mean salaries paid junior and senior high-school teachers by cities over 100,000 in population, 89; median and arithmetic mean salaries paid kindergarten and elementary-school teachers by cities over 100,000 in population, 88; median salaries paid and index relationships, 1930–31 and 1940–41, 86–87; median salaries paid elementary-school teachers, 82; median salaries paid high-school teachers, 83; median salaries paid junior high-school teachers, 82; median salaries paid superintendents, 83; method of making survey, 69; number of school systems included in study, 69; range and distribution of, 76–85; sample section from questionnaire form, 93; selected references on, 94–95; size of sample, 69; sources of further information, 88–90; Special Salary Tabulations described, 88–90; status of salary scheduling, 91–92; term "median" explained, 70; trends, 1930–31 to 1940–41, 70–75; trends in elementary-school teachers' salaries, 1930–31 to 1940–41, 75; trends in salaries paid, 1930–31 to 1940–41, in cities of various population groups, 70–74; trends in secondary-school teachers' salaries, 1930–31 to 1940–41, 75. See also Salary schedules.

Salary schedules: extent to which city school salary schedules were operative and in full effect in 1940–41, 92; NEA Committee on Salaries quoted, 91–92; number of, 91; number of city school systems reporting various types of, in 1940–41, 92; selected references on, 94–95; status of, 91–92; type of, 91–92. See also Salaries of city school employees, 1940–41.

Sandburg, Carl: referred to, 186.

Sanford, V.: referred to, 191.

School costs and state expenditures, 1930–1939: amount and percent of public elementary- and secondary-school revenue from federal, state, and local governments in 1920, 1930, 1934, and 1938, 143; amounts spent by state governments for various purposes, 1931, 1934, 1935, 1938, and 1939, 136–42; Census Bureau's classification of state expenditures by types of payments and by functions, 132–33; changes in ratio of school support and characteristics of the states, 105; characteristics of expenditure data, 132–33; characteristics of the states in relation to schools and highways, 114–15; characteristics of the states in relation to schools and relief, 118–22; classification of expenditures in state documents, 132; comparison of wealth, income, and value of school property per pupil enrolled, 148; effect on level of school programs, 109; expenditures for all educational purposes, 109–10; expenditures for public education at different educational levels, by states, 1937–38, 145; expenditures of federal and state money for education in ten states, 111; expenditures of federal and state money for highways in ten states, 116; expenditures of federal and state money for relief purposes in seven states, 124; expenditures per pupil enrolled in 1937–38, by states, 110; federal aid for education, 110–12; federal aid for highways, 115; federal aid for relief, 123–24; geographic location of states, 105–107, 114, 118; gross disbursements for highways, 115; gross expenditures, 110; how did the schools fare?, 101; income and wealth in relation to school expenditures and school property, 146–47; institutional and noninstitutional relief, 123; interstate comparability, 133; lack of information, 101; list of state financial documents examined, 134–35; location of states according to expenditures for schools, 105–106; luxury spending and ability to pay taxes, 126; national income, tax collections, and expenditures for public education, 1930 to 1938, 149; old and new purposes of state spending, 101; outlook for state school expenditures, 129–30; per capita wealth and income and per pupil expenditure for schools, 122; percent of net expenditures of state used for schools, highways, and relief in typical states of six geographical regions, 120–21; percent of total state expenditures used for highways and for schools in ten states, 114; percent of total state expenditures used for relief and for schools in ten states, 119; private spending for certain luxuries, 126; public elementary- and secondary-school revenue from federal, state, and local governments, by states, 144; ratio of state relief expenditures to total state expenditures, 118; relation of highway expenditures to total state expenditures, 113; rise in highway expenditures, 113; rise in school expenditures, 103; rise in state relief expenditures, 118; schools and highways, 113–17; schools and relief, 118–25; schools and the citizen's pocketbook, 126–28; schools and total state expenditures, 103–12; schools' share of rising government costs, 103–105; sources of expenditure data, 132; state school support in relation to income, wealth, and school costs, 108; state support for highways in relation to income, wealth, and school costs, 115; state support for relief in relation to income, wealth, and school costs, 122; states in which the share of the schools in the total cost of state government increased or decreased, showing percent of total net state expenditures used for schools, 104; states increasing or decreasing ratio of state school support to total state expenditures, 107; tax collections and expenditures for public education, by state, 1937 and 1938, 150; the states' annual bill for certain luxuries in 1938, 127; wealth and income of the states, 107–109; wealth, income, and per pupil expenditures, 122, 145, 148. See also Federal aid; Finance; Taxation.

Selective Service System: illiteracy revealed by, 225.

Selsky, Marcella S.: referred to, 189.

Shakespeare, William: referred to, 186.

Smith, Herbert W.: referred to, 188.

Smuck, L. Merle: referred to, 189.

Social security: comparison of average annual salary with estimated benefits under, 56; death benefits under, 56–57; deferred annuity value at permanent withdrawal, 58–59; description of Social Security Act, 55–56; difficulties involved in possible extension to teachers, 59–60; migratory teachers and, 59; no conflict in benefits with existing teacher retirement systems, 59; possible extension of, to teachers, 55–61; provisions under present law, 7; retirement benefits of, 56; selected references on, 62; suggested solutions of difficulties involved in possible extension to teachers, 60–61; value of benefits at time of death of husband, 57; Wagner bill, 4; withdrawal benefits, 57–59. See also Retirement.

Social Security Board: data on migration, 217–19; referred to, 62. See also Social security.

Society for Research in Child Development: monograph cited, 159.

Special classes: ability grouping and enrichment classes, 174–77; bases for grouping, 194; differentiated assignments in a special class in science, 191; enrichment activities in special classes in mathematics, 192–93; extra projects in an honor class in science, 190–91; for superior students, 164–66, 169, 194; group projects in special English classes, 186; honor schools, 176–77; individualized work in special English classes, 186–87; percents of cooperating high schools having one or more separate classes for superior students in individual subject fields, 174; procedures in, 184–85; special class in world literature, 188; special enrichment or honors classes, 175–76; specialized schools, 177. See also Superior students in high school.

Starr, D. W.: referred to, 191.

Stetler, Rose E.: referred to, 189.

Stoddard, A. J.: quoted, 232.

Stoddard, George D.: referred to, 159.

Studensky, Paul: referred to, 62.

Sumption, Merle R.: referred to, 165, 167, 196.

Superior students in high school: a comprehensive view, 169; ability grouping and enrichment classes, 174–77; acceleration, 171–72; acceleration versus enrichment, 164; acknowledgments of special assistance in preparation of bulletin on, 197; art tests, 162; bases for grouping, 194; characteristics of, 158–62; concluding statement, 194–95; continuous appraisal of the program, 195; current school provisions—curriculum and instruction, 182–93; current school provisions—organization and administration, 170–81; definitions of superior student, 157, 158–59; differentiated curriculums and course offerings, 172–73; drawing ability, 161–62; educational traits of mentally superior children, 161; elective subjects, 194; enrichment in specific curriculum areas, 185–93; extra-curriculum activities, 167–68, 177, 195; general characteristics of classroom instruction, 182–85; general provisions made in three types of cooperating high schools, 170; group tests of intelligence, 159; guidance service, 180; identification of mentally superior students, 159; improved marking system, 180; individual tests of intelligence, 159; information used in guiding students, 179–80; kinds of information which receive careful consideration in meeting the individual needs of, 179; mechanical ability, 161–62; methods of curriculum enrichment, 166–67; musical ability, 161–62; nature of enrichment, 194–95; need for enrichment, 194; other administrative provisions, 180–81; other characteristics of mentally superior children, 160–61; opinions of cooperating principals concerning the education of, 163–64; opinions of writers in the field, 164–69; physical traits of mentally superior children, 160; points of view concerning the education of, 163–69; provision for special abilities, 194; public relations, 195; purpose and procedure of study of, 157; qualifications of teachers, 168–69; rapid advancement, 194; selected references, 196; separate classes, 194; separate versus regular classes, 165–66; social, emotional, and moral traits of mentally superior children, 160–61; special abilities of, 161–62; specific aspects of school practice, 171–81; summary of local practices, 170–71; supervised correspondence study, 180; teacher qualifications, 195; teaching personnel, 178–79; tests of manual dexterity and mechanical ability, 162; tests of musical ability, 162; two principal types of leadership in relation to others, 167–68; unusual policy in regard to "extra" subjects, 180. See also Acceleration; Curriculum; Enrichment; Extra-curriculum activities; Homogeneous grouping; Individual differences; Instruction, Classroom; Special classes.

Taxation: Chief Justice Marshall quoted, 60; federal taxation of public employees and employers, 60; luxury spending and ability to pay taxes, 126; national income, tax collections, and expenditures for public education, 1930 to 1938, 149; of state agencies by federal government, 60; search for additional tax sources, 230; tax collections and expenditures for public education, by states, 1937 and 1938, 150; tax-fighting groups attacking school budgets, 205; tax load will be vastly increased, 100. See also Federal aid; Finance; School costs and state expenditures, 1940–41.

Taylor, George R.: referred to, 231.

Teacher welfare. See Retirement; Salaries; Tenure.

Teachers: of superior students, qualifications of, 168–69, 178–79, 195; recommendations deserving careful consideration by, 169; the professional personnel in the improvement of present education, 228; will find Research Bulletin useful in development of policies, 206.

Tenure: effects of tenure laws on membership in retirement systems, 46–47, 50–51.

Terman, Lewis M.: quoted, 158, 165; referred to, 158, 159, 160, 196.

Tests: art tests, 162; intelligence test should be supplemented by other ratings, 169; of manual dexterity or mechanical ability, 162; of musical ability, 162; to measure aptitude or achievement in specific subject fields, 162; used to identify mentally superior students at high-school level, 159, 162.

Trends: away from more arduous forms of manual labor, 223; in population movement, 219; growth in retirement systems over ten-year period, 44–46; in meeting differences in learning abilities of students, 157; in state expenditures, 100; in teachers' salaries, 1930–31 to 1940–41, 70–75; shifts in distribution of school enrolments, 1890–1940, 227; toward fewer births and fewer deaths, 209; toward universal education, 225. See also School costs and state expenditures, 1930–1939.

Turner, Henry C.: referred to, 172.

U. S. Congress, Seventy-Seventh: special committee quoted, 217.

U. S. Department of Agriculture, Agricultural Marketing Service: referred to, 127.

U. S. Department of Commerce: per capita salary-wage figures for 1940, 223.

U. S. Department of Commerce, Bureau of the Census: an important source of information, 206; classification of state expenditures by, 132–33; compilation of statistics on expenditures of state governments, 101; estimates of future population, 207; estimates of unemployment, 221; progress toward literacy, studied by, 225; referred to, 108, 115, 118, 127, 231.

U. S. Department of Commerce, Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce: referred to, 147, 149.

U. S. Department of Justice, Immigration and Naturalization Service: referred to, 231.

U. S. Government Printing Office: census material available from, 206.

U. S. House of Representatives, Committee To Investigate Migration of Destitute Citizens: referred to, 231.

U. S. Office of Education: advance figures on average salary of teachers, 56; average salaries of rural teachers, 69; provides information on all phases of education, 225; referred to, 7, 143, 144, 145, 147, 148, 149, 150.

U. S. Navy: referred to, 147.

U. S. Treasury Department, Bureau of Internal Revenue: referred to, 62.

Wagner, Robert F.: and extension of social security, 4, 56, 60.

White, Robert, Jr.: referred to, 175.

White House Conference on Child Health and Protection, Committee on Special Classes: report cited, 196; quoted, 200.

Wilder, Howard B.: referred to, 183.

Wilson, Sinclair J.: referred to, 191.

Winchell, Walter: referred to, 186.

Winston, Ellen: quoted, 205, 231.

Witty, Paul: referred to, 159.

Woodring, M. N.: referred to, 185, 190, 191.

Work Projects Administration: payments mentioned, 112, 132.

Yost, Henry T.: referred to, 176.

Young, Victor V.: referred to, 174.

Zorbaugh, Harvey W.: referred to, 196.

Zouck, A. M.: referred to, 193.